“ I recently reunited with my bff from my teen years after over 45 years. Maryann was a little older than I and guided me through some teen issues as I was so naive. I will always treasure the few recent visits we had together. She was still giving me advice as we spoke of current life situations. We shared wonderful memories, some I had forgotten. I told her of my desire to dance like we all did at Lisa's and George's home. Oh, such great memories in their home. She expressed her wish to dance again. It reminded me of a plaque I have that reminds us to dance like no one is watching. I know she is dancing now. It was so wonderful to remember the good times. I planned to visit more often and let life get in the way. Life slapped me in the face to remind me that time waits for no one. Life abruptly stepped in and said never put off things that are important to you. I am deeply saddened that we did not have more time for visits but grateful for the few times we spoke. I love you my dear friend and I know you are at peace. Everytime I CAN dance, I will. I will think of you and once again learn from you.
