“ Bob would have made a great singer. Our problem is not that we drink too much but we never drink enough.

“ *Amanda, Sharon and Diane, you have my sincere sympathy for your loss. Bob faced challenges in his life. No one can doubt that. We each have our challenges and will continue to this side of heaven. Despite these challenges, Bob found pleasure in God's creation. I think of him telling about picking mushrooms, fishing and hunting. Even walking through "the valley of the shadow of death", I can imagine Bob admiring God's creation. He just might find some delicious mushrooms and harvest a rabbit. That shadow of death will pass and the challenges he faced in life are behind him now. Now he has not just God's creation to enjoy but can be in the presence of God himself. Sincerely,
Bob's cousin, Ralph*
